DREAM OF DEATH FULFILLED

nteresting Story of Veteran in Indiana State Soldiers' Home-A Remarkable Coincidence.

Is the future ever unfolded to us in our dreams? After every catastrophe in the world there are hundreds of reports of persons having foretold such a happening as the result of dreams.

That it is possible for one to have some warning of a future event in his life most people will deny, but the fact remains that some remarkable coincidences are on record. An interesting case of a dream of death being fulfilled is told by H. C. Barnes, a veteran now residing in the State Soldiers' home at Lafayette, Ind, Mr. Barnes' story follows:

"When daylight dawned on June 27 1864, Sherman's army lay sheltered behind hastily prepared earthworks at the base of Kenesaw mountain.

"About eight o'clock of this beautiful summer day Harrow's division, of which our regiment formed a part, was ordered to fall in with gun, canteen and well-filled cartridge boxes. All knew what these orders meantthe ordeal of battle was to be met, With promptness the men responded to the call and within a few moments we were standing in line behind the intrenchment.

'As we stood drawn up in line of battle awaiting the command to move forward and assault the enemy's almost impregnable position upon the mountain's top our attention was called to a comrade whose elbow was in touch with that of the writer. While outwardly calm the man seemed to be undergoing some great mental disturbance and suffering with a fever of suppressed excitement-a condition quite foreign to his well-known characteristics. He was cast in a different mold from the average soldier, for he was always light-hearted, good-natured and easy-going, abounding in energy and grit. When rallied in a jocular manner by those near him as to the cause of this depression he nade this startling statement:

"'Last night I had a weird dream foretelling of the impending battle, every detail of which passed in re view in realistic form before my vision. Every movement that the command would make during the engagement was plainly enacted. I saw every foot of ground over which our regiment would pass on to the spot where I would receive a mortal wound.

"He gave a graphic account of the time, place and nature of the wound that would terminate in his death. To him it had all the finality of a death sentence, pronounced by a last court of resort. With heart overflowing with sadness and a knowledge that but a few brief moments remained of his life's career his courage never wavered for an instant. His bright, boyish face was illuminated with a pleasant smile as he bade his comrades farewell.

"Then the deafening roar of a hun dred cannon, with the bursting of shells upon the mountain's side, announced the opening of the battle. Following this, the clear notes of the bugle were heard all along the line sounding the charge. Five thousand of America's brave boys sprang over the works with fixed bayonets and charged upon the enemy.

"As the army advanced we came out upon a clearing, where we were met with a withering musketry fire. A confederate battery sent a storm of grape and canister into our ranks. One of the first victims to fall was this noble young comrade, whose breast had been pierced by a grapeshot. His premonition had proved true in every particular, even unto the spot and manner of his own death. "In the still evening, in the gray twilight, when the setting sun had passed from view in the crimsonflooded west, when bird and beast had hied away to nest and grassy lair, when the hush of night fell upon all nature, then we wrapped his torn body about with his own blanket as a winding sheet and, with a silent tear and last good-night, laid him away in a soldier's grave under the sighing branches of the green-robed sentinels of the forest."

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

HARRIMAN'S SUCCESSOR

With the election of Robert Scott Lovett as chairman of the executive committee of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific Railroad companies, the continuance of Edward H. Harriman's policies seems assured, so far as any man other than the creator of those policies could continue them. For "Judge" Lovett, as he is commonly called, has been Mr. Harriman's right-hand man and personal counselor for the last five years and probably is more convergant with the dead financier's plans that any other living man. He has been also general counsel officially for the Harriman lines and vice-president of both the Union Pacific and the Southern Pacific, as well as a director of these and a number of other railroads under Harriman control.

A small man physically, "Judge" Lovett has a pair of quizzical eyes and a determined mouth that can break into a smile as he talks. He gives an impression of vigor and masterful self-reliance, for which qualities, it is said, he was chosen to advise Harriman. In many hotly contested law suits Lovett had demonstrated his ability before he was asked by the man whose place he will try to fill to go to New York at a salary that made him the envy of most high-priced counselors in that city.

Born in San Jacinto county, Texas, 50 miles north of Houston, June 22, 1860, "Judge" Lovett was the son of a poor pioneer farmer who went to the Lone Star state from Alabama. As a boy he worked on the farm and went to a country school. When he was 14 years old the construction crew of the Houston East and West railway reached the neighborhood in which he lived and the boy was given employment by a contractor at digging out stumps from the right of way. Then he drove a scraper and after several months of hard work for several contractors he bacame a clerk in a store and a railroad agent at Shepherd, Texas. Then he studied law in Houston in the office of Charles Stewart, at that time representative in congress.

Beginning the practice of the daw at Cold Springs, the county seat of his home county, after being admitted to the bar in Houston in 1882, Lovett obtained his first railway connection when the Houston East and West railway went into a receiver's hands. He was employed to look after the road's interests at Nacogdoches. After a year of this work he returned to Houston and was made general counsel for the road.

From this time on his record shows rapid climbing as a Texas railway lawyer. In 1889 he became assistant general attorney of the Texas & Pacific Railway Company at Dallas, and two years later was made general attorney. Becoming a member of the firm of Baker, Botts & Lovett, he was soon in the front rank of Texas railroad lawyers. Trained in the Gould system, as his practice expanded he came into contact with Mr. Harriman through the large interests of the Southern Pacific system in Texas. January 1, 1904, he was made general attorney and counsel for all the Harriman lines in Texas and went to New York to live.

GUARDS ROYAL JEWELS

After a long and active service in the British army, the quiet of the Tower of London will probably be welcome to Gen. Sir Robert Cunliffe Low, who has just been appointed keeper of the jewel house in that venerable and historical pile. Few general officers in the army have a more varied and brilliant record of services and few can look back on so many exciting moments as Sir Robert has gone through in the course of his

Receiving his first commission in the Bengal cavalry in 1854, he served throughout the Indian mutiny and was present at the sieges of Delhi and Lucknow. After that he took part in several minor wars in different parts of India, earned medals, was mentioned in dispatches, and received the thanks of the Indian government on several occasions. In that terrible march from Kabul to Kandahar, with which Lord Roberts' name is everlastingly connected, Sir Robert Low was chief director of transport, and he was present at the battle which took place at the latter place.

Later he took part in one of the Burmese expeditions and in 1893, having by this time risen to the rank of major-general, he commanded the relief force to Chitral, and for this was again mentioned in dispatches and thanked by the government of India. From 1898 to 1903, as lieutenant-general and general, he commanded the forces in the Bombay district of India.

And now, after having spent a life that many soldiers would envy, he will end his days with nothing more to worry him than the responsibility for the safeguarding of his majesty's crown jewels. These consist of the crown, the scepter, the orbs for king and queen, and several other interesting relics of ancient days used at the coronation of English sovereigns, lying side by side with the very modern Cullinan diamond, recently presented to King Edward. Without this latter gem the value of the regalia is placed at $15,000,000.

TO PROVE COOK'S CLAIMS

Evelyn Briggs Baldwin, the arctic explorer firmly believes that Dr. Cook has reached the pole and announces that he will soon organize an expedition himself to prove Dr. Cook's assertion.

In 1898-99 Mr. Baldwin was with the Wellman expedition in its journey to Franz Josef land. He built and named Fort McKinley. Graham Bell land was discovered and explored by him. In the intervals between voyages Baldwin lectured extensively on polar explorations through the states of the middle west and the south.

The public is familiar with the details of the Baldwin-Zieglar expedition, which started June 13, 1901. William Ziegler fitted out the America for Mr. Baldwin and also gave him charge of two chartered supply steamers, the Frithjoff and Belgica. As a result of this trip there is now a series of stations extending from Camp Ziegler to Altair lodge, Crown Prince Rudolf land, the latter being in sight of the former headquarters of the Italian explorers. These stations, including several large ones on Franz Josef land, stretch for nearly 100 miles. In establishing them the party went over the distance a dozen times. Several of the stations included houses and pony sheds. Thousands of pounds of condensed food was stored at each of these points. Whether they have been utilized by succeeding expeditions does not appear, Personally Mr. Baldwin has the magnetism that draws men toward him. Modest in his expressions, he is forceful when the topic arouses him and when he argues he is convincing. He is unmarried.

WOULD BUILD BIG SUBWAY

George Washington Jackson, who is president of himself, incorporated, has startled even Chicago with the proposition to build a subway system under the down-town "loop district" and out into the suburbs for $80,000,000. George Washington. who was chief engineer in the construction of the Illinois tunuel system, and has been consulting engineer in a number of other large projects of like nature, was born in Chicago in 1861 and took up his present business in 1883. He says that his home city with no subway is shamelessly behind the times and that New York and Boston have subways, Philadelphia is building one, and St. Louis and Pittsburg are planning for others. Mayor Busse's experts have estimated $50,000,000 as the cost of a subway system, but only under the congested loop district. Jackson's proposed subway would have eight loops under down-town Chleago and continuous sidewalks which will prevent congestion at any one point. Jackson has worked four or five years on his plans, the difficulty being in planning the proposed work to dodge the many water pipes, telephone conduits, sewers, gas mains, electric light conduits, cold storage pipes, steam pipes for heat and power, and high pressure water mains.

A GREAT ANNOYANCE.

Kidney Disease Shows Many Painful and Unpleasant Symptoms

George S. Crowell, 1109 Broadway, Helena, Mont., says: "I was troubled with a disordered condition of the kidneys, some backache and irregular passages of secretions. At times I was obliged to get up out of bed at night, and the urine was unnatural in appearance. On the advice of a friend I procured Doan's Kidney Pills and began using them. This remedy helped me at once, strengthened my kidneys and corrected the disordered condition."

Remember the name-Doan's. Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

As St. Louis Lawyers Talk. Circuit Judge Reynolds had announced that he would hear jurors who had excuses to offer for not serving, and a dozen American citizens crowded up to the bench to tell their troubles. Their excuses were as varied as those who were bidden to the feast that the bible tells about. One had an important engagement and another could not hear very well, and another had sickness in his family, and another had duties to perform which nobody else on earth could perform, and another was going on a journey. And so it went,

The last man in the line wanted to be let off because he was a German. He might have been excused if he had not presented his excuse wrong end

"Judge," he said, "I can't understand good English."

"Oh, you'll do all right," said the "There is no good English fudge. spoken in here."-St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

They Didn't Have to Change. During the years in which our pure food laws have been put into effect there has been a great hurrying and scurrying on the part of the food manufacturers to change their methods to make them conform to the law.

The Quaker Oats Company is a con spicuous exception. It was admitted that Quaker Oats was a clean as possible and that it was an ideal food.

It is so cheap that any one can afford it and so nourishing that every-one needs it. The result of last year's experiments at Yale and other points where food values were tested is that Quaker Oats has been adopted by many persons as their food on which they rely for adding vigor and endurance of muscle and brain.

The Quaker Oats Company meets all demands in the way it packs Quaker Oats; regular size packages and the large size family package; the latter, both with and without china.

Snake Story

"Before he went flishing," said the town story-teller, "he swallowed bout a pint an' half of snakebite remedy, an' of course you know what that Well, after the snake bit him, the reptile cut all sorts o' capers, kaze the remedy went straight to its head Last thing it tried to do wuz to swaller its tail, an' it got itself in the form of a hoop, an' I'm a liar ef the children didn't roll it around all day!"-Atlanta Constitution.
